

Resolution in Favor of Establishing the Right for Donald J. Trump to Run For a Third Presidential Term

Introduction: The United States faces unprecedented domestic and international challenges that demand experienced leadership and policy continuity. The 22nd Amendment, ratified in 1951, established presidential term limits during a markedly different era. Current global circumstances, including economic competition with China, technological transformation, and international security challenges, require reconsideration of these constitutional constraints. This resolution proposes examining the potential modification of presidential term limits to ensure America maintains effective leadership during critical periods of national transformation.
